

AP Courses and Summer Expectations

AP courses offer students college-level work while in high school. The College Board has created course guides that may include prerequisites, extended reading, or learning beyond the scope of the school-day curriculum. To support the learning frameworks and completion of the material prior to the exam, many AP courses require students to complete a summer assignment and/or attend summer sessions. The type and scope of the assignments and sessions will vary by course. All assignments are tightly aligned to the learning outcomes and intended to further support the student in the course.

AP course faculty meet with students in May to review their course specific guidelines and expectations for summer work. Students who join the course after the end of the year will need to contact the AP course teachers directly as soon as the course is added to ensure adequate time to fulfill the requirements. Below is a list of AP courses, teachers, email addresses, and summer expectations.

All AP courses will begin classes during the two orientation days at the start of the year by attending one 1.5-hour class for each AP course enrolled in. AP students only need to attend the periods for their assigned AP courses according to their schedule which will be released in August. These sessions should not interfere with fall sports schedules.
